AND HERE'S A LETTER FROM STEVE..
Hi Bill —
Although I'm 21 and serving with the Army here in Austria, Europe, I still enjoy your Katy Keene Comics and designs.
Katy is hardly ever seen as a bride and because she's so pretty, I don't blame you not wanting to marry her off! However, why not portray her as a Model Bride in one of your stories with a full page pin-up for the collectors! For this I have submitted my own original design — a special one for someday I hope my future bride, to be wearing it!
I am hoping you can use my design and if you do I hope to see it way over here in Austria.
Sincerely yours,
Pfc. Steve Katchmer

MATINEE IDLE

Katy never knew what hit her. One minute she was holding hands with Kayo in the movies. Next, she was out of this world. Kayo knew there was something wrong when her hand suddenly went limp in his and she sat bolt upright staring at the screen.

"Katy, m'love. What's the matter?"

"Look at him, Kayo," she said, her voice quivering like a plucked violin string. "That's the man."

"What man? All I see is an actor named Victor Valiant."

"That's the man," she repeated as though hypnotized. "The man of my dreams. I can't help it, Kayo. He does something to me."

"He does somethin' to me too, begorra," Kayo said sourly. "He gives me a swift pain."

"Look at those strong, manly shoulders. That dark, wavy hair. Those magnetic eyes with that smouldering look. Those deep dimples in his cheeks. He's everything I've ever wanted in a man. If only I could get to meet him. Talk to him. Touch him. Oh Kayo. I'd die happy."

Kayo watched out the rest of the picture in disgust. Katy was lost to him. He might as well be sitting next to a mannikin. A sighing, gurgling, love-sick one. He took her home and said goodnight, a very disgruntled and unhappy prizefighter. Unless Katy snapped out of it, he knew he'd lost her to a celluloid cutie-pants. A cinema smoothie. A wide-angle wolf.

Nor was Randy Van Ronson over-joyed to hear this latest turn of events. As a rival for Katy's heart and hand with Kayo, he had a chance. But with this Victor Valiant in the picture, he wasn't even a poor second. So they both put their heads together to see how they could fight this latest menace. But neither of them could come up with any solution. Not right then anyway.

But the next week, Kayo received a phone call from an excited Randy. "Kayo," he said, "I'm about to call up Katy and tell her I'm bringing her and Victor Valiant together."

"Are yez nuts," Kayo shouted. "Do you want to lose her altogether?"

"I don't think we will," Randy said mysteriously. "I had the extreme pleasure of running into Valiant. We got to talking. I invited him to a party on my yacht. He accepted. Now I'm inviting you and Katy. You just be sure she gets there," with which he hung up.

At first Kayo was distrustful. Randy had tried many a trick in the past to get Katy away from him. This might be another one of them. But he shrugged away this thought as it occurred to him that he didn't have Katy anyway. What did he have to lose?

When he sprung the news on Katy, she was so overcome with joy, she kissed him. Kayo sighed. Any other reason for being kissed would have made him a very happy man. But this one practically sounded his death knell.

It was gorgeous the night Randy's party rolled around. Balmy breezes, soft golden moonlight. A scent of flowers in the air. And an orchestra making tender and romantic music. Kayo came with a feeling of attending his own execution. He cursed Randy for being fool enough to provide Victor Valiant with such a perfect setting. But it was too late to back out now. Katv was a vision of beauty as she stepped on the yacht and she at once became the center of attraction. All eyes turned toward her, Victor Valiant's among them.

Randy brought Victor over and introduced them. If Katy had slipped her moorings when she saw him on the screen, she was off and sailing now when he leaned over her outstretched hand and placed a continental kiss upon it. He looked exactly as he did on the screen. Even more so. Katy was sure he could hear her heart thumping like mad. It sounded like the roar of thunder in her own ears. And when he took her in his arms to dance, she was gone. But gone.

"Randy, you idiot," Kayo hissed. "Look what ye've done now. We've lost her for good."

"Patience, my good man. Patience. The evening is yet young. And I have a plot."

"Well, it better work or begorra, it's liable to turn into a burial plot. For you."

The music had stopped. The dancing was over for a while. Randy walked up to Victor Valiant. "Vic, old boy," he said. "Let me show you around my yacht!"

"Well . . . uhh . . . I'm a little busy now," he said looking meaningfully at Katy.

"Oh, come on. Katy'll be waiting for you. Don't worry." Randy had him by the arm and was leading him away. Kayo didn't know what he was up to. But he soon found out. There was suddenly a resounding splash and the voice of Randy was shouting, "Man overboard. Man overboard."

"Quick as a flash, Kayo dived over the rail. He soon found Valiant struggling in the water. In a matter of minutes, both of them were being hoisted up on deck. Katy came running up, her voice filled with anxiety. "Victor. Victor. Are you all right?"

The spotlight which had been lighting up the waters to help locate the swimmers was now turned fully upon them as they stood there, shivering and dripping on deck, so they were both clearly seen as being safe and unharmed. There was also something else clearly seen. And Katy's chin dropped near a foot when she saw it.

The broad manly shoulders were gone, carried away by the jacket which was left floating in the water when Kayo went to his rescue. So was the dark, wavy hair. And the deep dimples without the heavy, pancake make-up were suddenly old age creases.

Kayo chuckled as Victor Valiant started groping toward his cabin. He suspected that the magnetic gleam in his eyes were nothing more than the shine of contact lenses. Katy must have suspected the same thing too, by the utterly crestfallen look on her face.

He put his arm affectionately around Randy's shoulders as soon as they were alone. "That was a lucky flop our friend, Victor Valiant, took."

"Yes, wasn't it," Randy said dryly.

"Only thing. How did you know he was all camouflage?"

"Oh didn't I tell you where I met Victor?" Randy said with wide-eyed innocence.

"No! Where?"

"In a turkish bath!"

CAN YOU FIND AT LEAST 40 OBJECTS BEGINNING WITH THE LETTER "A" IN PICTURE?

IT IS POSSIBLE TO FIND 10 TOYS IN THE BLOCKS SIS HAS ARRANGED. START FROM CERTAIN LETTERS, IN ANY DIRECTION. THE ARROWS SHOW YOU HOW TO SPELL "BALL"

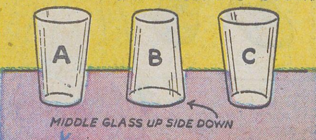

MYSTERY PICTURE: CONCENTRATE YOUR VISION ON DOT ON NOSE FOR 30 SECONDS THEN LOOK AT THE SKY OR LIGHT COLORED WALL AND "ABE" WILL APPEAR, ENLARGED

CAN YOU DO THIS THE FIRST TIME

PLACE THREE GLASSES ON TABLE AS SHOWN. IN THREE MOVES, TURNING OVER TWO GLASSES AT A TIME, FINISH WITH ALL THREE GLASSES UP SIDE DOWN

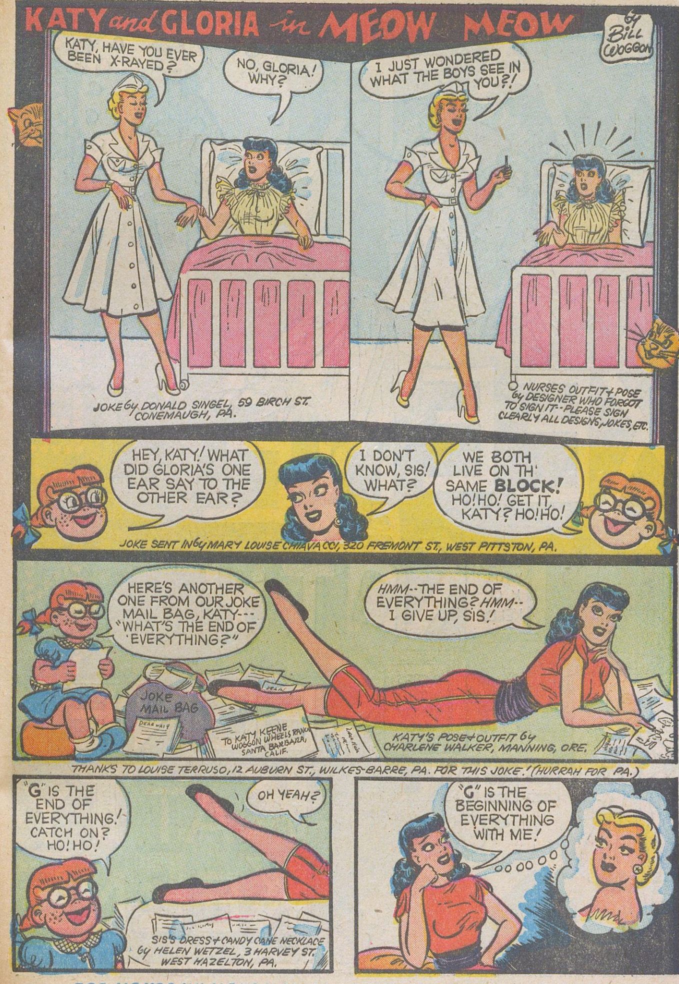

ANSWERS

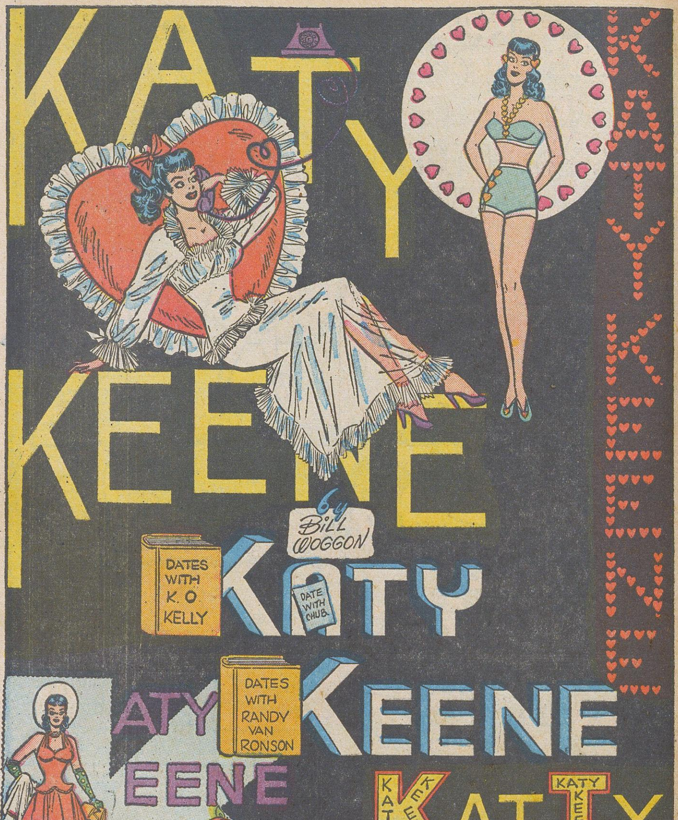

BLOCKS: BOAT, DOLL, SKATES, SLED, KITE, BAT, TOP, BOOK, GAME

IT'S A FACT: YOU CAN NOT BEAT ARCHIE PUBLI-CATIONS

GLASSES: FIRST TIME TURN OVER B&C. SECOND A&C. THIRD TIME B&C

FOR HOURS 'N' HOURS OF FUN, READ ARCHIE'S PALS 'N' GALS!

CREDITS FOR THESE LETTERING DESIGNS WILL BE FOUND ON THE NEXT PAGE.. THANX TO ALL DESIGNERS IN THIS STORY...

"KATY KEENE SAYS...."
MANY OF MY FANS ASK IF ALL DESIGNS USED IN MY BOOKS ARE EXACTLY AS THEY ARE SENT TO ME!?
YES! IN MOST CASES THEY ARE EXACTLY AS I RECEIVE THEM WITH FEW CHANGES MADE--FOR INSTANCE THE ABOVE FASHIONS BY JOHN GUENTERT WERE DRAWN ON 8½X11 PAPER--HE USED A PIN-UP POSE OF ME WHICH APPEARED IN ONE OF MY BOOKS!
8½X11 SIZE PAPER IS MOST POPULAR! MANY WONDER IF THEY HAVE TO BE COLORED OR IF MY FACE MUST BE DRAWN IN!? NO! THIS ISN'T NECESSARY BUT IT HELPS IF YOU ARE ABLE TO DO SO
Katy Keene
MOST IMPORTANT LET ME TELL YOU WHAT NOT TO DO!
DO NOT FORGET TO SIGN YOUR NAME AND ADDRESS CLEARLY ON EACH AND EVERY DESIGN!
DO NOT CUT THE DESIGNS OUT AND SEND THEM TO ME--THEY ARE HARD TO HANDLE THIS WAY
DO NOT SEND MONEY AND ASK THAT I SEND YOU THE BOOK YOUR DESIGN MAY APPEAR IN! YOU WILL BE NOTIFIED WHEN IT APPEARS! YOUR DESIGN MAY BE USED IN ANY ONE OF THE MANY BOOKS IN WHICH I STAR!!
WATCH FOR A NEW ARCHIE SERIES STAR—PAT THE BRAT COMICS!
